

The National Library of Ireland's Web Archive

How the NLI is Preserving Contemporary Irish Women's History

The National Web Archive

Preserving Irish websites & websites of Irish interest since 2011

A core part of the NLI's strategy– reflects and complements existing collections

Political, Cultural, Creative, Social and Commentary websites

Available free of charge, anywhere in the world from www.nli.ie

Political

Political websites are vulnerable to deletion

Every Irish election and referendum since 2011

Candidate websites, Political Party websites, Blogs and Commentary websites

Candidate Twitter Accounts and Party YouTube

Marriage Referendum 2015

The 8th Amendment Debate– Continuously collecting both sides of the debate since 2012 (L)

Historical

"Remembering 1916. Recording 2016"– A focus on the women who participated in 1916 such as @Womenof1916 (R)

2017 Collection: Mother and Baby Home Commission - Capturing the online representation of the official commission and also of those who campaign on this issue (R)

Social

A focus on women's issues & organisations:

#Waking The Feminists– Twitter and website (L)

Irish Country Women's Association– Bringing together the manuscript archive and the digital presence of the ICA.

Charity & Advocacy groups: Women's Aid

Blogs: Women are Boring (L)

Sport: Women in sport such as Katie Taylor and Annalise Murphy