INTRODUCTION

Biography

Roddy Doyle was born in Dublin in 1958. He grew up in Kilbarrack on the north side of Dublin, which was to provide the setting of many of his novels. He attended University College Dublin in the late 1970s and graduated with a BA. After completing university Doyle taught English and Geography at the Greendale Community School, Dublin, until he became a full time writer in 1993.

Doyle’s first novel to be published was The Commitments (1987), which was adapted into a popular film in 1991. This was followed with two more novels, The Snapper and The Van, also set in Dublin and later adapted for the big screen, which formed The Barrytown Trilogy. Doyle’s next novel Paddy Clarke Ha Ha Ha! won the Mann Booker Prize in 1993, and as with his other works received international acclaim. Since the success of Paddy Clarke he has written two further sets of novels. Two based around the protagonist Paula Spencer, The Woman Who Walked into Doors (1996) and Paula Spencer (2006). And a trilogy of novel The Last Roundup; A Star called Henry (1999), Oh, Play that thing!, the last title is forthcoming.

As well as his full length work for adults Doyle has written a number of books for children and teenagers. He has produced a series of short stories for Metro Éireann, later published collectively as The Deportees, as well as a number of short stories for The New Yorker. In 2002 Doyle published his first non-fiction work Rory and Ita based on the experience of his parents.

Doyle has written extensively for stage and screen. He has adapting his own works such as The Woman Who Walked into Doors and The Barrytown Trilogy, as well as original pieces, from Brown Bread and War for the Dublin based Passion Machine Theatre Company (late 1980s) to When Brendan Meet Trudy (2002).

The Papers

This collection was donated to the National Library of Ireland in 2008. There are also a number of scripts included in the screenplays section that were purchased separately by the National Library related to Family, a serial produced by the BBC in 1994. The collection is made up of typescript drafts, proofs and research notes, as well as a small collection of newspaper cuttings, zip disks and Dictaphone tapes. The collection is contained within 18 boxes and is generally in very good condition. The papers cover Doyle’s literary career from the early 1980s to 2007. There are also a handful of papers relating to his student life at UCD in the late 1970s.

Arrangement

The material within this collection has been arranged into ten sections. The first six deal with Doyle’s literary works; short-stories; non-fiction works; works for children and... teenagers; plays; and screenplays. The following three sections contain; a small number of papers relating to Doyle’s student days at UCD; a number of articles written by Doyle; and a small collection of newspaper cuttings, many relating to Doyle. The final section contains computer disks, with much of the material on the disks having been printed and referred back to the relevant preceding nine sections.

Assessment

The Roddy Doyle collection covers much of Doyle’s literary career. Roddy Doyle’s works of fiction are well represented by the items in the collection, as well as items relating to his non-fiction book, Rory and Ita. The collection also contains drafts and notes for many of Roddy Doyle’s plays and screenplays. There are a small number of items relating to articles he wrote for various newspapers and magazines, as well as published articles about Roddy Doyle.
