Introduction

The Collection

This collection relates to the Lloyd family estate, mainly in the barony of Clonlisk, Kings County. The Lloyd family became associated with Gloster upon the marriage of Trevor Lloyd to the incumbent heiress of Francis Medhop, Rose Medhop, by whom he acquired estates in Kings County and Co. Tipperary. The Medhop family originally came into the possession of the lands under a Royal Patent from King Charles I. After the English Restoration, further lands were assigned to Trevor Lloyd in 1666. By the 1870s the Lloyd family owned c. 4,500 acres of land, mostly in Kings County and Co. Tipperary.

The Papers

A report on the Lloyd papers was made by Sir John Ainsworth in Report on Private Collections No. 397. The collection was donated to the National Library of Ireland in 1957 by Major E.R. Lloyd. The documents within the collection are mainly estate papers from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. A large portion of the documents mentioned in the report that date from the eighteenth century are no longer present with the collection. The Lloyd collection is contained within three boxes, and is in fairly good condition.

Arrangement

This collection has been arranged into four sections; Estates Papers; Trusts and Trusteeships; Maps; and Family Papers. The Estate Papers section has been further subdivided into Leases, Legal and Business papers, Fee Farm Grants, and Miscellaneous. The papers within each section are arranged in chronological order.

Unless otherwise stated all lands are in the Barony of Clonlisk, Kings County.

I. Estate Papers

This section has been divided into four sub-sections, Leases, Legal and Business papers, Fee Farm Grants, and Miscellaneous. Where possible all leases, lease renewals, and fee farm grants that relate to the same properties have been kept together.

I.i. Leases

The following section is divided into leases for lands in Kings County (Co. Offaly), and leases for lands in Co. Tipperary.
