Introduction

The St. Leger family

The St. Leger family, which came to Britain during the Norman conquest of England, first settled in Ireland upon the appointment of Sir Anthony St. Leger as Lord Deputy of Ireland in 1540. The family became linked with Doneraile, Co. Cork upon Sir William St. Leger's occupation of Doneraile Castle in the 1630s.

The titles of Viscount Doneraile (Co. Cork) and Baron Kilmayden (Co. Waterford) were created for Arthur St. Leger in 1703. After Hayes St. Leger, 4th Viscount, died in 1767 without issue, the estates passed to his nephew St. Leger Aldworth who took the St. Leger name and arms as a condition of his inheriting the property. The title then underwent a second creation and St. Leger St. Leger, as he was known, became the 1st Viscount of the second creation and Baron Doneraile.

Most of the St. Leger family's property was sold to tenant farmers under the various land acts passed in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, leaving only Doneraile Court and demesne in the family's possession. The latter was purchased by the Irish Land Commission in 1943 and the family home in 1969.

The papers

The Doneraile papers were kept at Doneraile Court until 1969, after which most of this material was purchased by the National Library of Ireland (see Collection List 62). Some of the earliest deeds in the family's possession, however, had been separated from the rest of the collection and were only acquired by the library at a later date. It is this earlier material which is described in this collection list. Contained in 10 boxes and despite their age, the papers are generally in good condition.

Pedigrees of the St. Leger family can be found in the National Library of Ireland Genealogical Office. A family tree appears in Collection List 62. Material relating to the St. Leger family held in various libraries in Britain can be found through a search of the National Library's online 'Sources catalogue' or Richard Hayes' Manuscript sources for the history of Irish civilization (Dublin, 1965).

Assessment

The papers in this collection are a valuable historical source on the St. Leger family, the areas of north Cork, Fermoy, Waterford and Meath, the military history of County Cork (including the period of the 1798 rebellion) and business practices in late seventeenth-century Waterford. This material should be seen in conjunction with that listed in Collection List 62, which includes related material as well as many later papers of the Doneraile family.

The papers in this collection consist primarily of property deeds of the St. Leger family from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. These include documents relating to the acquisition of Doneraile by Sir William St. Leger in the 1630s and various lease agreements made for property in County Cork in the century thereafter.

In addition, there are numerous documents relating to property dealings in County Waterford. The St. Leger family acquired an estate in Waterford through the marriage of Arthur St. Leger, 1st Viscount, to marriage to Elizabeth Hayes, a granddaughter of a successful businessman John Otterington, some of whose papers are included within this collection. There are also deeds relating to property in Leinster and Ulster, including seventeenth century property deeds held by the Deane family in Leinster (which were acquired by the St. Leger family upon the marriage of Hayes St. Leger, 4th Viscount Doneraile (1st creation), with Elizabeth Deane during the eighteenth century) and property deeds of the Conyngham family of Ulster, which became related to the St. Legers through the marriage of a daughter of George Lenox Conyngham to Hayes St. Leger, 4th Viscount, during the nineteenth century.

I.ii. Title Deeds and Leases of the St. Leger family's Waterford Estate (including papers of John Otterington and Henry Nicoll)

John Otterington was the grandfather of Elizabeth Hayes, who owned property in Waterford that became part of the estate of Arthur St. Leger, 1st Viscount Doneraile, upon their marriage in the early eighteenth century. Henry Nicoll was a close business associate of Otterington. Their material consists of deeds (with some related correspondence) dating from the seventeenth and early eighteenth century, prior to the acquisition of their estate by the St. Leger family. The remainder is property deeds of the St. Leger family from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.
