Introduction

History and provenance

The greater part of the collection was generated by the late Lt-Col. Niall C. Harrington (1901- 1981). It mainly consists of material relating to his private life, his career in the Irish army, his contribution to the Parnell Commemoration Association, and his writings. The collection also includes additional papers of his father, Timothy C. Harrington MP, BL (1851-1910), most of whose papers were already in the National Library for many years (Mss 5384-88; 8576-95; 8930-34, 9210-11). The collection also includes papers and correspondence of Niall C. Harrington's daughter, Nuala Jordan. This material is mainly concerned with her curatorship of the papers in the period 1981-2001, and the publication of her father's book, A Kerry Landing.

On Harrington's death in 1981 the collection passed to Nuala Jordan, who presented it to the National Library of Ireland in two deposits. The first deposit (Accession 5699, December 2001) included almost the entire collection. A residue (Accession 5841, December 2002) consists mainly of material borrowed from the collection by Anvil Books Limited or generated by it in the course of publishing A Kerry Landing.

Niall C. Harrington

Niall Charles Harrington (1901-81) was born on 23 January 1901 at 6 Cavendish Row, Dublin, the home of his grandfather, Dr Edward O'Neill. His parents were Timothy Charles Harrington, MP, BL, a native of Castletownbere, Co. Cork and Elizabeth O'Neill, daughter of Dr and Mrs Edward O'Neill. At the age of nine his father died, and he went to live with his uncle, Edward Harrington in Tralee, Co. Kerry. He attended the local Christian Brothers' school, later completing his education at Rockwell College, Cashel, Co. Tipperary.

Embarking on a career in pharmacy, in June 1918 Harrington was apprenticed to a chemist in Boyle, Co. Roscommon. He joined the IRA and the IRB, becoming 1st Lieutenant in A Company, 1st (Boyle) Battalion, North Roscommon Brigade IRA. Forced to leave the area in September 1920 due to his IRA involvement, he joined C Company, 2nd Battalion Dublin Brigade IRA. Following the Treaty, he joined the Medical Corps of the Irish army on 7 March 1922 as a private, attaining the rank of corporal shortly afterwards. In this capacity, he was on duty at the attack on the Four Courts and at the subsequent fighting in O'Connell Street. On 31 July 1922 he embarked with the expeditionary force of Dublin Guards which landed at Fenit, Co. Kerry two days later with the objective of out-flanking the Republican forces which then controlled most of the county.

En route to Kerry, Corporal Harrington transferred from the Medical Corps to the Dublin Guards. He served through most of the Kerry campaign, being promoted to 2nd Lieutenant for bravery at the ambush at Droum near Rathmore. In 1923 he became Captain and Adjutant, 27th Infantry Battalion, Kenmare, Co. Kerry, later serving with the 54th Battalion at Newbridge, Co Kildare (1924-25), and at Athlone, Co Westmeath (1925-26). He served as Captain, General Staff, GHQ 1926-34, graduating from the Infantry School of the Military College in 1931. He was attached to the Military Archives section, 1935-38, graduating from the Command and Staff School of the Military College and being promoted Commandant the following year. His subsequent rankings and postings were Commandant and O.C. Marine Depot, Haulbowline, Co. Cork (1940-41); Commandant and Command Intelligence Officer, Eastern Command (1941-44); Commandant and Command Adjutant, Eastern Command (1944-46); Commandant, General Staff, GHQ, Intelligence Section (1947-51); Lt Colonel (Deputy Director) G2 (Intelligence) Branch, GHQ (1952-59). On retiring from the army on 28 January 1959, he was employed as membership representative with the Federated Union of Employers in the period 1959-73. He enjoyed good health and was active up until his unexpected death on 10 September 1981.

Throughout most of his adult life Harrington was involved in promoting the commemoration of Charles Stewart Parnell, serving as secretary and later as president of the Parnell Commemoration Association for a number of years. He was largely responsible for the erection of the memorial at Glasnevin, and in making Avondale open to the public as an educational and heritage resource of national significance. He also made a contribution to popular education through various features on historical subjects which he scripted and presented on 2RN/ Radio Éireann from around 1935 onwards. These included narratives, talks and plays, the most notable being the play Resurgence - A Cavalcade of the Easter Insurrection, which was broadcast in March 1937. On occasion, he also broadcast on behalf of the army, and provided the script and voice-over for the army recruiting film Step Together (1939). In addition, he contributed numerous articles to newspapers and periodicals, some under the pen-names of 'Niall O'Neill' (based on his mother's maiden name) or 'Brian Mulhern', the reason for which is not known.

Harrington's major literary production was an account of his part in the Kerry campaign, originally written as a memoir under the title, 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland', and intended as a record for the Military Archives. In 1978, however, on the advice of Dan Nolan of Anvil Books Limited he proceeded to expand the memoir into a full-length book. The eventual book, A Kerry Landing, had been revised and expanded with the help of information supplied by survivors from the period whose assistance he sought through an appeal in The Kerryman. The expanded text included an account of his role in the I.R.A. in Boyle and in Dublin, an outline of the War of Independence, the immediate post-Treaty period, and the Civil War in general, all of which provided context for the memoir and boosted its impact.

The publication of A Kerry Landing took several years, mainly because Harrington died (Sept. 1981) before the book was ready for the press. Dan Nolan, however, continued to enhance the text with additional information, again solicited through The Kerryman. Following Nolan's death on 8 December 1989, the project was brought to a conclusion by Rena Dardis of Anvil Books Limited, A Kerry Landing being eventually published in July 1992. It generated considerable academic and popular interest, being acclaimed as a notable addition to the relatively small number of accounts of the 1916-23 period by actual participants in the struggle.

T.C. Harrington

Timothy Charles Harrington (1851-1910), was born of farming stock at Castletownbere, Co. Cork in 1851, his parents being Denis Harrington and Eileen O'Sullivan. He was educated at the local national school where he later worked as a monitor. In 1877 he took up a teaching post at the Dominican Schools, Holy Cross, Tralee, soon, however, abandoning teaching for journalism. He established the weekly newspaper The Kerry Sentinel which he published with the assistance of his brother Edward. The newspaper became prominent through its support for the land reform movement, attracting the attention of Charles Stewart Parnell, who in 1881 offered Harrington the position of secretary of the Irish National Land League and subsequently the secretaryship of the Irish National League, posts which he filled with considerable distinction. He was elected MP for Co. Westmeath in 1883, switching in 1885 to the Harbour Division of Dublin city, a seat which he held until his death in 1910. In 1887 he was called to the Irish Bar where he subsequently defended many of those charged with political or agrarian offences.

From 1882 onwards T.C. Harrington was one of the major personalities of the land movement, becoming especially prominent through his promotion of the Plan of Campaign. One of Parnell's most valued and trusted advisors, he formed part of his legal team at the Special Commission of 1888-89. At the split in the Irish parliamentary party in 1890, he and his brother Edward remained loyal to Parnell, thereafter working assiduously to re-unite the party. In the period 1900-1904 he held the office of lord mayor of Dublin for three terms. Harrington Hall, 70 Harcourt Street, where he lived in the period 1904-1910, has been named in his honour.

On 24 August 1891 he married Elizabeth O'Neill, daughter of Dr and Mrs Edward O'Neill of 6 Cavendish Row, Dublin. He had five children, including sons Dan and Niall Charles. He died on 12 March 1910. Following his death his fine library at 70 Harcourt Street was auctioned and dispersed. Most of his papers, however, have been preserved and are now in the National Library of Ireland, the main corpus (Mss 5384-88; 8576-95; 8930-34, 9210-11) having been in the Library for many years, and the remainder (Mss 40,614-24) being part of the present donation.

Arrangement of the papers

In arranging the papers it seemed logical to observe the chronological order, beginning with those of T.C. Harrington. Niall's papers divide into four roughly equal groups: those relating to his life and military career; those relating to the commemoration of Parnell; the scripts of his articles and radio features; and the Kerry Landing material. The Anvil Books material is arranged in the Kerry Landing section, but has been treated as a separate entity within the section. The Nuala Jordan material constitutes a useful epilogue.

A relatively small number of items (books, periodicals, prints and a drawing) have been transferred to the National Library's Department of Printed Books. Four large photographs have been transferred to the National Photographic Archive, Temple Bar, which is also a department of the National Library.

The material has been arranged as follows:

Papers of T.C. Harrington

Niall C. Harrington : Life and military career

Niall C. Harrington : The commemoration of Parnell

Niall C. Harrington : Scripts of radio features and articles

Niall C. Harrington : Kerry Landing material, including Anvil Books

Nuala Jordan material

Material transferred to Department of Printed Books

Significance of the collection

The T.C. Harrington material is the most important section of the collection. Harrington was one of the more prominent members of the Irish Parliamentary Party and a leading protagonist in the land movement, roles which are well attested in the Harrington Papers already in the National Library. The material spans his entire political career (1882-1910); it supplements the previous holding, filling some lacunae and amplifying certain areas. It includes letters of a number of the major figures of the period, including Charles Stewart Parnell, John Dillon and William O'Brien. The most notable section is a file of letters and papers (MS 40,620) relating to the Paris Fund, which clarifies some of the legal issues involved.

Each of the four sections of Niall C. Harrington 's papers has its own importance. The section relating to his life and military career cannot, however, be expected to provide much insight into military operations, as most of the documents which he generated in the course of his duties would have been preserved among the records of the various units in which he served, any such surviving records being now in the Military Archives. Nevertheless, the section does include drafts or copies of a number of official documents which have accidentally found their way into this collection of private papers, for instance, items relating to the raid on the Magazine Fort in the Phoenix Park in 1939. In some cases, these isolated documents may be of considerable significance as the official files may not have survived; such fragments may now constitute the only extant record.

The papers relating to the commemoration of Charles Stewart Parnell record the role of Harrington and others in enhancing his status as a national icon and in preserving and developing Avondale as one of the premier heritage sites in the country. The radio scripts are of interest in that they represent a popular and highly-regarded facet of the cultural product of 2RN and Radio Éireann in the 1930s and 1940s, being particularly important in that there are no recordings of the actual broadcasts in the RTE archives.

The Kerry Landing material is a very significant addition to the National Library's holdings relating to the Civil War period. Although its value as a historical source has naturally become less crucial with the publication of the book, the material is still important in that it includes information that was not considered strictly relevant to the subject in hand. The eye-witness reports acquired by Harrington and Dan Nolan contain considerable data which may not yet have been fully exploited.

The collection has the distinction of representing two generations of a notable nationalist family over a period of exactly one hundred years (1882-1981): a distinguished father who contributed significantly to political and social reform, and his son who has bequeathed to posterity the evocative memoir, A Kerry Landing.

II Papers of Niall C. Harrington

II.i His life and military career

These papers are mainly personal and private but they also include some items, mainly copies, which were generated in the course of his military career and were accidentally retained among his private papers. Most of the documents generated by him in the course of his official duties would, however, have been retained on army files and, if extant, are now in the Military Archives. As a result, the record of his army career presented here is extremely patchy, but supplements the official record, in so far as it exists, in the Military Archives.

- MS 40,625 Biographical data and personal items, manuscript, typescript and printed; includes curriculum vitae, obituary notice, newscuttings, and 10 photographs, mainly 'snapshots'; list of household purchases, 6 pp, June 1930; ms drafts of the introduction to his memoir prepared for the Military Archives, c.1977; 28 items, c.1930-1981.
- MS 40,626 Material relating to his military career; includes identification card for Commissioned Officer of the Defence Forces; commendation relating to the guard of honour at the Eucharistic Congress, 1932; appointments, including president of court of inquiry into explosion at Fort Lenane, Co. Donegal, 1944; 3 service certificates; 10 photographs; newscuttings; 30 items, including some photocopies, 1922-59.
- MS 40,627 Notebook with green cover with diary entries for period 6-8 Oct. 1922; pocket diary for 1937 with occasional entries, mainly relating to broadcasts and to research on the period 1916-22; a small black notebook with notes and occasional diary entries including some that may relate to research for A Kerry Landing, in particular the occupation of Killorglin by Free State troops; 3 pocket diaries with entries for the period May 1978-Dec. 1980, including many references to research for 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland'; 6 items, 1922-80.
- MS 40,628 Invitations to functions; 31 items, c.1931-65.
- MS 40,629 /1 Material relating to the killing of Republican prisoners at Ballyseedy, Tralee, Co. Kerry by Free State troops, 7 March 1923; includes a transcript by Harrington of 'copy of report re Ballyseedy in handwriting of H[umphrey]. Murphy to Liam Lynch'; partial copy of the text of a Dáil statement by Gen. Richard Mulcahy which recites part of the official report; note by Harrington stating that in his opinion the official report was 'totally untrue', ms, undated; 16 items, including photocopies, 1922-80.
- MS 40,629 /2 Material relating to the assault by Free State soldiers on two girls at Kenmare in September 1923, including photocopy of letter from Kevin O'Higgins to W.T. Cosgrave; also issue of the periodical Éire, 19 July 1924, relating to the army mutiny and referring to Harrington's role in the inquiry into the Kenmare incident; 6 items, 1923-24.
- MS 40,630 File relating to his application for a military service pension under the 1924 act; includes Certificate of Military Service, 13 November 1927; outline of War of Independence service in Boyle, Co. Roscommon and in Dublin; statements and affidavits by officers and former comrades, including Lieut. T.J. Delahunty, Francis M. Dooley, James Feely, Sergeant, Garda Síochána, Michael Knightly and Lt Gerald Murray; 10 items, 1927.

- MS 40,631 File relating to a request for information regarding his time at Rockwell College, including a memo in his hand on his subsequent career; 4 items, 1937.
- MS 40,632 /1 Photocopy of account to be charged to the Educational Film Company of Ireland relating to a journey to London for the recording of the commentary for Step Together (1939), a ten-minute army recruiting film scripted and voiced by Harrington; 5 photographs, possibly relating to Step Together; 6 items, 1939.
- MS 40,632 /2 Copy of report by Harrington on air crash at Jenkinstown, Co. Louth, 16 March 1942, 5 sheets, 23 March 1942.
- MS 40,633 /1 Papers relating to the raid on the Magazine Fort, Phoenix Park, Dublin, 23 Dec. 1939: report by Harrington together with a partial draft and a draft covering letter; ms, 30 sheets, 27 Jan. 1942.

II.iv Kerry Landing material, including Anvil Books

This section includes material relating to the original memoir 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland' and to the eventual book, A Kerry Landing. The title 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland' seems to have been used up until a late stage and sections of manuscript or typescript with that title do not necessarily represent an early stage of the work. The scope of the expansion from memoir to book was probably not clearly defined before Harrington's death in 1981; the process of expansion was gradual and to some extent was continued by Dan Nolan up until his death in 1989.

Most of this section was part of the main collection (Accession 5699). A small part of the section consists of the Anvil Books material (Accession 5841) which Rena Dardis gave to Nuala Jordan following the publication of the book. The two parts of the section have been kept separate although they overlap to some extent.

- MS 40,680/1 Letters mainly relating to research for 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland'/ A Kerry Landing; correspondents include Col. Dan Bryan, Jim Dempsey, Capt. John Devaney of B+I Line re the Lady Wicklow, Prof. Robert Dudley Edwards, Oliver J. Flanagan, TD, Minister for Defence, Col. James McGuinness, Billy Mullins; 32 items, Feb. 1977-78.
- MS 40,680 /2 Letters from Dan Nolan of Anvil Books Limited to Harrington, mainly relating to the content and the publication of 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland'/ A Kerry Landing, but ranging over various issues, including the period 1916-23, more recent history, mutual acquaintances and personal matters, 13 items, 10 June 1978-8 Sept. 1981.
- MS 40,680 /3 Letters from Niall C. Harrington to Dan Nolan, mainly relating to the publication of 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland'/ A Kerry Landing, but also covering a range of matters, including the 1916-23 period, recent history, mutual acquaintances and personal matters, 40 items, 5 May 1977-25 July 1981. [These letters were retrieved by Nuala Jordan after the death of Dan Nolan in 1989].
- MS 40,681 /1 Notebooks of Niall C. Harrington with research notes for 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland'/ A Kerry Landing, including names of informants and extracts from publications; 5 notebooks, the most notable being one with a green cover and 51 pages of text; 5 items, c.1978-80.
- MS 40,681 /2 Research notes by Niall C. Harrington for 'A Fine Day to Die for Ireland'/ A Kerry Landing, based on the Gen. Richard Mulcahy Papers in University College Dublin Archives, ms 51 sheets; 2 associated letters from Prof. Robert Dudley Edwards, Oct. 1978, March 1979; 55 sheets, c.1978-80.
