Introduction

The Family

John Howard (1616-1643) married Dorothea Hassells in 1636 and they had one son, Ralph. After the death of John, Dorothea subsequently moved to Ireland where she married her cousin and owner of Shelton Abbey, Robert Hassells. The small estate at Arklow had been acquired from the Countess of Dromard in 1658. There were no surviving children from the marriage between Dorothea and Robert Hassells. Ralph Howard then inherited Shelton Abbey after the death of his mother in 1684.

Ralph Howard (1638-1710) was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1670 became Regius Professor of Physic. In 1674 he was appointed President of the College of Physicians in Ireland. Marriage was to Katherine Sotheby, daughter of Roger Sotheby, M.P. for Wicklow. They had six children who survived to adulthood: Hugh, Robert, William, Frances, Katherine and Dorothy.

After the abdication of James II Ralph Howard and his family fled to England as a result of the disturbances in Ireland. In 1689 he was attainted by the Irish parliament and his property was forfeited. Shelton Abbey was granted to a Mr. Hacket. James II is said to have stayed at Shelton Abbey after the battle of Boyne in July 1689. Following the accession of William III, Ralph Howard recovered his estates; in 1697 he acquired more land in North Wicklow from the Earl of Ormonde.

Ralph's sons Hugh and Robert married into the Langston and Boleyn families respectively. While his daughter's Frances, Katherine and Dorothy married members of the Kennedy, Molyneux and Dopping families.

Ralph Howard (1726[7] - 1789) was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, like his grandfather. In August 1755 he married Alice Forward, only daughter of William Forward, M.P. Castle Forward, county Donegal. This was an advantageous match as it resulted in the addition to the Howard estate of 6,000 acres in the barony of Raphoe, county Donegal.

Over the generations the various Earls of Wicklow pursued careers in a variety of spheres; they became academics, bishops, artists, civil servants, politicians and soldiers. Papers relating to individual Earls reflect their various occupations and provide an insight to these areas.

The Papers

The papers of the Earls of Wicklow were held at the family home, Shelton Abbey, County Wicklow, until the 1950s, when the estate was sold to the Department of Forestry. Sir John Ainsworth, Inspector of Manuscripts in the National Library of Ireland surveyed the papers and compiled Report on Private Collections No. 292 which outlined the nature of the collection. In 1950 the collection was deposited with the National Library of Ireland, accession 911. Additional material was purchased in 1998, accession 5280. In 2002 the collection was listed by Niall Keogh, holder of the 2003 History Studentship of the National Library in conjunction with the Irish National Committee for History.

The Wicklow Papers relate to several generations of the Howard and Forward family from the 17th to the 20th century. There are also references to other families such as the Molyneux, Dopping and Sotheby families. In the main the papers consist of property deeds, leases, agreements, bonds and receipts relating to the administration of the family estates in counties Donegal, Wicklow and Dublin. Where there is a large amount of material relating to a particular barony arrangement is based on place and then chronologically, for example, county Donegal, Barony of Raphoe. There is a smaller amount of material referring to property throughout Ireland. The parties involved in the transactions are listed as well as the land or property concerned.

There are documents relating to wills, probates and related documents of the Howard family and others including the Forwards, Stuarts and Sir Anthony van Dyke. Some items concern disputes over the terms of settlements.

Robert Howard, Bishop of Elphin and his wife Patience (nee Boleyn) was involved in a legal case with John and Mary Leigh. This was quite a protracted case and a large amount of documents were generated.

As a result of the wide range of dates of the papers there is a variety of types of documents and records in the collection. As already mentioned there are property records, as well as correspondence, school reports, letters of appointment, a small amount of game records, marriage settlements, wills, legal opinions, results of searches; all illuminating different aspects of the Howard and Forward families.

Another interesting aspect of the papers is that the effects of World War I is shown here in microcosm through the documents and correspondence relating to the death of the brother of the Countess of Wicklow, Lord John Hamilton (Claud).

There are approximately seventy-five archival boxes of material. In the main the documents are in good condition and suitable for access. However a small proportion of the older material requires conservation and is not suitable for consultation. These are generally deeds with seals attached, which have become brittle or broken.

The Wicklow papers are important for the study of the landed history of counties Wicklow and Donegal and provide and insight into the history of a family over a number of generations.
