

Conservation Internship 2020/2021

The Heritage Council of Ireland and the National Library of Ireland

The Heritage Council and the National Library of Ireland are pleased to offer a one year conservation internship. The internship is part of the Heritage Council's commitment to the promotion of best practice for conservation in Ireland. The intern will work alongside experienced conservators in the NLI's busy conservation studio. The internship will combine studio practice and research and will develop and broaden the intern's knowledge and experience. He/she will work on a variety of collections from the manuscript, printed and visual collections of the National Library of Ireland, as well as assisting in the preparation and installation of exhibitions and loans. The intern will be encouraged to publish and present their work to different and diverse audiences.

Requirements:

- Recent graduates of a recognised book &/or paper conservation training programme (2018-2020).
- Theoretical understanding and practical experience of conservation treatments (paper and/or book or parchment)
- Experience in surveying/ dealing with large collections
- Ability to work independently and as part of a team
- Excellent written, verbal & IT communication skills

Stipend: €28,000 (subject to normal statutory deductions)

Applicants should ensure that they are eligible to live and work in Ireland.
