Introduction

Dr. Callanan's papers were generously donated to the National Library of Ireland in 1948 by his daughter Ms. Angela Callanan. Concerned with the key political and economic issues of the 19th century, their dominant, though by no means overriding theme, is that of the modernization of county Tipperary.

A native of Dovea, county Tipperary, Martin Callanan was born on the 19th of September, 1866. He graduated from the College of Physicians in Dublin in 1890 and was appointed M.O. H., Thurles and M.O., Thurles dispensary district. Dr. Callanan spent his working life in the medical profession in Tipperary and had a concurrent interest in the modernisation of the county, as his membership both of the Urban Council and the Library Committee attest.

The papers amount to nearly 2000 items contained in 60 folders and housed in 4 archival boxes. There are also 27 small notebooks stored together in 1 large flat box. The collection is listed in 2 main subgroups. Subgroup I contains original historical documents and Subgroup II consists of historical notes, some of which were compiled in connection with Callanan's published works: The Abbey of Holy Cross and Four Tipperary Septs the O'Kennedys, O'Dwyers, O'Mulryans, O'Meaghers.

The material included in Subgroup I dates mainly from the 19th century. Successive generations of the Scully family of Kilfeacle are well-represented, complementing the contents of Scully Papers already catalogued and held at the National Library (see: Collection List 7).

Correspondents of the barrister Denys Scully concerning Catholic Emancipation include John Joseph Dillon and Dr. Troy. There are papers relating to the controversy surrounding the printing of Scully's tract: Statement of the Penal Laws which Aggrieve Ireland. Some of Scully's letters are signed Nestor and Solon. Scully was in fact called the Nestor of the Catholic Committee of which he was a leading member. There are also letters from George Hamilton Gordon, 4th Earl of Aberdeen, and from Isaac Butt to Vincent Scully M.P., Denys' son.

Also included in Subgroup I are documents from the Estate of Long Orchard owned by the Power-Lalor family. These include a large number of rental and legal documents. Similarly, there are items obtained from the Thurles and Thomastown Estates pertaining to Viscount William Louis de Rohan Chabott and the Mathew family. Viscount Chabot's documents are principally eviction notices dating from the 1850's. A separate section contains items referring to prominent persons and institutions in Tipperary including the Thurles Grand Jury.

Subgroup II consists of historical notes written by Dr. Callanan himself, touching on most areas of Tipperary life and recorded history: matters biographical, ecclesiastic, genealogical, legal, sporting and political. There are also transcriptions of poems and ballads such as: 'Eamon an Cnoic.' Most of the notes are unbound but the collection also includes 27 notebooks with similar material.

The collection was originally two manuscript numbers: MS 11, 421 and MS 11, 422. To facilitate access these have been refined and expanded in the current Collection List.

The overall condition of the items comprising the collection is good but some of the original material, particularly Denys Scully's correspondence and notes are in a very degraded condition and must be handled with care.

The National Library also holds microfilm copy of Dr. Callanan's historical notes: The Barony of Eliogarty (n. 4580 p.. 4546); other notes and extracts concerning Tipperary, (n.5359 p.5489); other historical notebooks (MS 1661-73); a list of Tipperary Freeman (MS. 10, 970) and over two hundred land deeds (D. 19, 742-98, D. 19, 799-19,829, D. 19, 854-69, D. 19, 948-97).
