(Accession No. 5669)

A collection of estate and personal papers generated by the family of St Leger, Viscounts Doneraile of Doneraile Manor, Co. Cork, relating to estates mainly in counties Cork and Waterford, 1756-1950. The collection also includes material relating to the Castletown estate in Queen's county due to the marriage in 1874 of the 2nd Lord Castletown (Bernard Edward Barnaby Fitzpatrick) to Ursula Clara Emily St Leger, daughter of the 4th Viscount.

Compiled by Susan O'Loughlen and Ciara McDonnell, 1998-2000

INTRODUCTION

The family

The origins of the St Leger family date from the Norman invasion of England when Sir Robert Sent Legere acted as companion-in-arms to William the Conqueror, and established a residence in the Manor of Ulcombe, Kent. Their Irish connection dates from 1540 when Sir Anthony St Leger, trusted servant of Henry VIII, became Lord Deputy of Ireland. This association with Ireland continued as other members of the family were appointed as officials of the English crown including Sir Anthony's nephew and grandson who became Master of the Rolls of Ireland and Commander of the Government of Munster respectively. The St Legers were first linked with Doneraile when Sir William St Leger occupied Doneraile castle in 1639. The titles of Viscount Doneraile (Co. Cork) and Baron Kilmayden (Co. Waterford) were created for Arthur St Leger in 1703. When Hayes St Leger, 4th Viscount died in 1767 without issue, the estates passed to his nephew St Leger Aldworth who took the St Leger name and arms as a condition of inheriting the property. The title then underwent a second creation in 1785 and St Leger St Leger, as he was known, became the 1st Viscount of the second creation and also Baron Doneraile.

The title and vast estates duly passed from father to son for the next three generations, but Hayes St Leger, 4th Viscount died leaving only female heirs and the title passed to Richard Arthur St Leger, a cousin, and later to his nephews Edward and Hugh. Again, failure to produce male heirs resulted in the transfer of title to another cousin, Algernon St Leger, and his son and grandson.

There is a wealth of material relating to the St Leger family and its various members. Apart from illustrating their military and political roles, a large proportion reflects their personal lives and interests. The most eminent family member is perhaps Elizabeth St Leger, later Aldworth, the first lady Freemason. Although there is no contemporary account of her life, her past resonates through the correspondence of the latter generations of the family. Despite the large amount of family material within the collection very little refers to the private lives of the earlier generations of the St Legers. Their political and military roles are relatively well documented and there is also considerable marriage and testamentary material, but there is very little personal correspondence. From the time of Hayes, 4th Viscount (of the 2nd creation) more personal material remains, with one of the largest sections within the collection being the family archive assembled by Edward, 6th Viscount and brought to Ireland following his death. This contains the papers of the various branches of the St Leger family, the Alcock Stawell's of Kilbrittain, county Cork, and those of Edward's mother's family, the Bishops, Fellowes and Willows families. Edward not only preserved letters of his immediate family, but also those of more distant relatives and friends, illustrating the social life, education and preoccupations of the aristocracy and upper-classes. His siblings' papers are also of interest, his brother Ralph emigrating to New Zealand to become a sheep-farmer and his sister Ethel's letters concerning the political and economic turbulence of 20th century Ireland.

While the majority of family papers concern the St Legers, a substantial amount of material relates to other personalities. The papers of George Lenox Conyngham, a keen botanist, are preserved within the collection, his daughter Mary being the wife of Hayes, 4th Viscount. Similarly the papers of the 2nd Lord Castletown (Bernard Edward Barnaby Fitzpatrick and his wife, Ursula Clara Emily St Leger, daughter of Hayes, 4th Viscount (of the 2nd creation) comprise one of the largest sections of the collection. Much of Lady Castletown's correspondence survives along with a miscellany of personal papers belonging to her husband. Lord Castletown's papers reveal a man of varied passions and pursuits. His interests included the Celtic Revival, Freemasons and politics, especially the foremost issues of his day, land reform and Home Rule.

Following the death of Hugh, 7th Viscount without issue in 1956 a vacancy of title arose. The 10th Viscount is reputed to be Richard St Leger from Orange County, California. He traces his line of descent from the second marriage of the younger son of St Leger St Leger. However he is not the proven title-holder. In 1958 his father Richard St John St Leger petitioned the House of Lords to establish his claim to the peerage, but no report was made and no details were ever given.

The estates

The St Legers owned various estates at different times during the history of the family. The Doneraile property first came into the possession of Sir William St Leger, Lord President of Munster, when he purchased a major part of lands belonging to the Manor of Kilcolman from Sylvanus Spenser, son of the poet. This was confirmed by royal grant as was another purchase which expanded the estate. The other large property in county Cork, the Buttevant estate, came under the receivership of Hayes, 3rd Viscount during the 1820s when Sir John Anderson became bankrupt. The Waterford estate came into the possession of Arthur, 1st Viscount through his marriage to Elizabeth Hayes, granddaughter of John Otterington.

The family also held estates in counties Tipperary and Laois during the 18th century. According to Landowners of Ireland (1876) the Cork property was 8,374 acres and the Waterford property 6,584 acres, with a joint valuation of £13,700. Most of the property was sold to tenant farmers under the various land acts around the turn of the 20th century, leaving only Doneraile Court and the demesne in the hands of the family. The Irish Land Commission bought 360 acres of the demesne in 1943 and purchased the house in 1969.

A number of different agents were responsible for the management of the St Leger estates. These included William Hill, who dealt with tenant problems caused by the transfer of ownership of the Buttevant estate, and W.G. Mitchell, whose role was expanded to include management of the Doneraile Sawmills. Towards the end of the 19th century, with the 6th Viscount absent in England, Lord Castletown (husband of Ursula Clara Emily, daughter of the 4th Viscount) and his agents became responsible for the management of the Cork estates as well as his own property in Queen's county, which comprised over 23,000 acres, valued at £15,750. Both Godfrey Levinge and George Hamilton acted as Lord Castletown's agents and managed both the Cork and Queen's county estates. After the death of Lord Castletown in 1937, Hamilton continued to run the estates until Hugh, 7th Viscount returned to Ireland from New Zealand.

The St Leger estates were a profitable business providing a generous income for the family. Despite several rent abatements during the famine and loss of one quarter of the annual revenue during this period, rental income increased steadily in the latter half of the 19th century. Apart from the successful spinning school run by a sister of Hayes, 2nd Viscount, the main demesne enterprise was the Doneraile Sawmill. Managed by both Godfrey Levinge and WG Mitchell, the sawmill was a great success, especially during the First World War.

The papers

The collection had been stored at Doneraile Court until purchased by the National Library in 1969-70 (Accession 5669). The principal classes of documents are leases, rentals, accounts and vouchers (household and estate), correspondence, marriage settlements and wills. The papers cover the period from the 1570s to the 1960s. When originally purchased in 1969-70 the collection numbered 100 boxes; after listing and arrangement the figure is 270. Considering the great age of many of the items, the papers are generally in good condition, although many of the volumes require re-binding.

Some but not all of the subgroups within the collection provide comprehensive coverage of a particular aspect of the estate or the family. Judging from the lists of leases made by Sir John Ainsworth it is certain that many of the earlier conveyances and leases were removed before acquisition, especially those relating to the origins of the estates. The rent rolls and rentals are generally complete, as are the estate accounts and vouchers. There is little of the estate correspondence which must have been generated by the various Viscounts, especially for the 18th century, but the agents' correspondence appears intact, apart from that of Henry Longfield. The records of the Doneraile Sawmill are almost complete, and there is also some material relating to the farm and gardens. The household and personal accounts and vouchers provide a comprehensive record of the expenditure of the family from the 17th century onwards.

Despite the large quantity of family papers, little personal material remains to illuminate the private lives of the earlier generations of the family, especially Elizabeth St Leger, the first lady Freemason, although their public appointments and military roles are relatively well documented. The private lives of the later St Legers are also well represented.

The collection also includes the large artificial archive of material collected by Edward, 6th Viscount, which contains pedigrees, notes and correspondence about the St Legers and their relations. The final subgroup of the collection contains part of the Castletown (Queen's County) papers, including an almost complete series of estate records for the 20th century and some of Lord Castletown's correspondence and papers relating to his personal and political interests.

A small number of items previously listed in Richard J. Hayes (ed.) Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation (1965) and Supplement (1979) are also included in this list [D. 27,326-47; Ms. 16,519; Mss. 19,681-3; Ms. 19,726; Ms. 21,717; Mss. 21,850-1; Ms. 21,985; Ms. 22,027; Ms. 23,463; Ms. 24,927; and maps 16 J.(16), (18-20)]. While some of these items may have been acquired separately, it seems sensible to include them in this list.

Related collections and other complementary material include pedigrees of the St Leger family in the Genealogical Office and legal papers belonging to the case of Arthur, 2nd Viscount and Catherine Sarah St Leger (1734) in the King's Inns Library. The National Library 'Report on Private Collections', no. 22, by Sir John Ainsworth and E. A. McLysaght's article in Analecta Hibernica, no. 15 (1944) provide lists and summaries of 17th century material, some of which was removed from the collection before it was acquired by the Library. For an outline of material relating to the Ulcombe St Legers held by Lambeth Palace Library, the Bodleian Library, the British Museum, and the Salisbury Manuscripts as called for by the Historical Manuscripts Commission (1883), see Richard J. Hayes (ed.) Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation (1965) and Supplement (1979).

The Castletown papers within the collection are complemented by the collection of Castletown papers acquired by the National Library directly from Castletown (Collection List 55). Lady Castletown's scrapbook (Ms. 3079) is also in the National Library, as is a selection of miscellaneous papers relating to the Fitzpatrick family concerning family and estate matters (Ms. 27,810) and the household and personal accounts and vouchers belonging to Lord Castletown's father, John Wilson-Fitzpatrick, 1st baron Castletown (Ms. 27,811). There are some pedigrees of the family in the Genealogical Office and various deeds in the National Archives; various deeds and correspondence are held in the British Library.

Arrangement

When the Doneraile collection was acquired the original order of the papers had been largely upset. They have now been arranged into eight subgroups: The first three include the purely estate material: I) leases and agreements; II) financial administration including rentals; III) estate management including estate correspondence. Subgroup IV is concerned with demesne enterprises, including the farm, gardens and sawmills; subgroup V consists of household records, and subgroup VI consists of family papers and correspondence.

The collection includes considerable material relating to Lord and Lady Castletown. That relating to Lord Castletown's administration of the Doneraile estates is included at appropriate points in the above subgroups, but the personal and family material and that relating to the Castletown estates in Queen's County constitutes a separate subgroup, VII.

The collection also includes a small number of extraneous items, which have been brought together as subgroup VIII.

Notes

The various creations of the title of Viscount Doneraile have not been distinguished where it is not necessary.

St Leger Aldworth (Sentleger Aldworth) took the surname St Leger on inheriting the estates of his uncle, Hayes, 4th Viscount in 1767. This is sometimes written as Sentleger Sentleger. He became Baron Doneraile in 1776, and 1st Viscount Doneraile of the 2nd creation in 1785.

The Hon. Bernard Edward Barnaby Fitzpatrick married Ursula Clara Emily St Leger, daughter of Hayes, 4th Viscount in 1874; he became 2nd Baron Castletown in 1883. He is referred to as Lord Castletown throughout the list.

I. ESTATE: LEASES & RELATED AGREEMENTS

These are arranged by the various counties in which the St Leger's owned estates: Cork, Waterford, Tipperary, and Queen's county (now county Laois), and are listed in the order in which the properties were acquired. Within the counties the leases and associated documents are grouped into townlands, and in the case of the towns of Buttevant and Doneraile they have been grouped by streets. Those relating to the Buttevant, Doneraile and Waterford estates are most numerous and cover the greatest time span. This section includes leases belonging to Sir John Anderson's Buttevant Estate, and those relating to the Aldworth family estates in Newmarket, Kilcummer and Ballyhooly, county Cork. Though mainly leases, there are also conveyances and mortgages, and for the 20th century there are caretaking, grazing and conacre agreements. This subgroup also includes lists and schedules of leases. A few items relate to urban properties such as in Kildare Street, Dublin.

II. ESTATE: FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION

The records of financial administration mostly relate to the estates in general rather than the specific estates. The estates held at different times and periods were in counties Cork, Waterford and Tipperary, and Queen's county (Laois). At certain periods the estates were accounted for separately, such as the Buttevant estate (1812-45) and the Waterford and Tramore estates. The financial records consist of rent rolls and rentals, estate and cash accounts, estate vouchers and income tax records. There are very few chronological gaps in the financial records of the estates, the rentals of which date from 1721 up to the 1950s, though with a gap for 1836-40. There is also a gap among the series of estate vouchers between the 1850s and 1890s, though some may be found among the household and personal accounts (subgroup V). Sometimes they were kept with the rent rolls, as between 1810 and 1820. Material relating to estates in counties Cork and Waterford is the most substantial and covers the greatest time span.

II.i. Rent rolls & rentals for estates in general

Rent rolls for the various estates held in counties Cork, Waterford, Tipperary and Queen's county (Laois) run consistently from 1721 to 1818. They record the tenants' names, the denomination of lands held, rents received, arrears due, old arrears and some observations. Some include agents' accounts for rents.

- Ms 32,952
- (1) Rent rolls of the Liscarroll estates of Capt. Hayes St Leger in counties Cork, Waterford and Queen's county 'the rents of which are received by Charles Butler', who also sends his accounts, as does Stephen Worthevale for the Waterford estate. III. ESTATE MANAGEMENT

These records include letters to various members of the St Leger family and their estate agents, including members of the Hill family, Henry Longfield, Godfrey Levinge, W.G. Mitchell and George Hamilton. The correspondence has been divided into general and specific. Most of the material relates to the Cork and Waterford estates. Papers relating to Lord Castletown's estate in Queen's county are included here, and also those of George Hamilton who managed both the Doneraile estate and Lord Castletown's estate in Queen's county. Also included is a large amount of tenants' proposals, valuations, reports, surveys, tenant lists and returns of tenants and freeholders. There is also material relating to land disputes, legal settlements, and the Land Commission.

III.i. Family members

Correspondence of the various Viscounts Doneraile, Ladies Doneraile, & Lord & Lady Castletown. Not all of the material relates to estate administration, and considerable material seems to be missing, making developments somewhat vague and inconsistent. The material from the 1880s is the most complete. Material specifically relating to the Waterford estate is grouped together, other groups originally found together have been kept that way.

III.ii.2. William Hill

William Hill was agent for both the county Cork and county Waterford estates. Most of the material relates to the Buttevant estate, which went bankrupt under the ownership of Sir John A. Anderson and came under the receivership of Hayes, 3rd Viscount. There is a substantial amount of material relating to the Waterford estate, but little relating to the Doneraile area, most of what does exist is for the 1840s. Regular correspondents for the period covering the takeover of the Buttevant estate include Hayes, 3rd Viscount, the assignees of Anderson's estate, Joseph Bell and Thomas Maxwell Atkins regarding the Barrymore annuity payments, and Robert Weldon regarding tithe rent composition. Rev. J.L. Cotter makes many appeals on behalf of tenants and Dr Robert Eames writes concerning local health matters and poor law commissioners. Other material includes proposals for leases, petitions, letters from tenants (many complaining about the activities of Lord Doneraile's baliff, Corneilius Garvan).

III.ii.3. Henry Longfield

There are many chronological gaps within this subsection. Some of his letters can also be found at the beginning of this section, among the correspondence of Hayes, 4th Viscount. He does not appear to have been very happy in his job as is illustrated by his letters to Hayes, 4th Viscount, and his wife. The material relates to general estate matters and also to the Waterford estate.

- Ms 34,029
(1-3) Henry Longfield's financial records (quite miscellaneous in nature) including account book of payments made to Mr Lothian, county Cork estate steward (1839-49), and loose accounts of payments made on behalf of Hayes, 3rd Viscount and Hayes, 4th Viscount; 3 folders
1839-1886
- (4) Concerning matters on the Waterford estate. John Hayes (Ballymabin, 1863) writes of poisoning of Hayes, 3rd Viscount's dog, 'the best of all the hounds' by 'sum of our . . . naybours'. Includes (May 1887) details of the size and income of the Waterford estate and the amount of judicial rent therein. A letter from Thomas Hearn is enclosed regarding tenants worries which Longfield refers to in a letter to Lord Castletown (Nov 1887) 'wrote to him & said that I believed Lady [Mary, 4th Viscountess] Doneraile intended to propose to sell to her tenants very soon'. Includes Land Corporation's cattle account; 12 items

- (8) Letters from Henry Longfield to Lord Castletown regarding tenants' holdings and estate finances; includes his letter of resignation from estate agency, 'Lady [Mary, 4th Viscountess] Doneraile and I shall go on doing my best until a substitute is appointed. I really could not stand the continuous worry of the business in so many ways and besides I could see no prospect of getting in money in the way you and Lady Doneraile seemed to expect. If tenants are to occupy land in the south of Ireland I fear the rents on many properties must be greatly reduced'; 6pp
Sept-Nov 1887

III.ii.4. Godfrey Levinge

These papers relate to both estate and private and personal matters. Godfrey Levinge was Lord Castletown's estate agent from 1887-98 and their correspondence suggests a close friendship and good working relationship. His papers concerning estate matters are quite small in quantity and mostly relate to land sales to tenants. Levinge took his own life in 1898 and his suicide note is among his private papers.

III.ii.4(1) Correspondence relating to estates in general

IV. DEMESNE ENTERPRISES, FARMING & GARDENS

These records relate to demesne activities and estate enterprises including the spinning school and the sawmills. The farming records have been divided into two categories, livestock and produce, and staff and labourers. There are a significant amount of stock and tillage returns, farm accounts, staff records, as well as general charges and tradesmen's bills, most of which relate to the county Cork estate, with some relating to Waterford. Some early documents from the 1700s indicate what grew in the gardens but most of the material is twentieth century. The documents are sometimes referred to in Lord and Lady Castletown's letters.

IV.i. Enterprises

IV.i.1. Doneraile Spinning School

- Ms 34,062
(1) Letters to Hayes, 2nd Viscount from Mr Besnard concerning 'Miss St Leger's Spinning school' with a 'Plan for promoting a branch of the linen manufacture in Doneraile ... The Cultivation of flax being little known in this district'. Besnard comments on the exhibition of the young girls in the Spinning school in Cork – 'you cannot form an idea of the interest the creatures have excited. Mrs Crawford Lakelands assured me... she will have a school in less than a month... a little exertion on the part of the Cork Ladies would soon clear the streets of the unclothed females that disgrace it!'. References are made to the linen trade and flax; 19 items July 1818-Nov 1819
- (2) Accounts of supplies for the spinning school received by Catherine Pratt; 7 items 1820-3

IV.i.2. Doneraile Sawmills

The Doneraile Sawmills was a fine example of a demesne industry established by a landlord and providing local employment. The records survive almost in their entirety and mainly cover the period 1894-1948. They are arranged in three classes: 1) correspondence, both general relating to orders and supplies, and specific relating to such matters as government departments and supply of lighting to Doneraile town; 2) agreements relating to the purchase and sale of timber and to the foundation and administration of the company; and 3) financial records including, sales books, wages books, ledgers, vouchers and records dealing with insurance and income tax. Managing directors of the company included Godfrey Levinge and W.G. Mitchell, the estate agents. W.J. Horn was secretary for a period.

V. HOUSEHOLD RECORDS

The household records consist partly of inventories encompassing the various households of the temporary and more permanent residences of Doneraile Court and Granston Manor (Lord Castletown's family seat). Also included in this subgroup are records relating to renovation work carried out at Doneraile Court and its outhouses, and the household and personal accounts and vouchers of the many Viscounts Doneraile and their families. There are some estate vouchers and accounts mixed in with the latter which have been retained with them to reflect the original arrangement.

VI. FAMILY PAPERS

There is considerable material concerning both the public and private lives of members of the St Leger family and related families. Apart from reflecting their military and political roles, a large proportion reflects their personal lives and interests. This subgroup also includes marriage and testamentary material together with correspondence concerning trusts, executorships and inheritance. There is a large amount of family correspondence from the period of Hayes, 4th Viscount (of the 2nd creation) to that of Hugh, 7th Viscount and his wife, Mary. The papers of Edward, 6th Viscount consist of a sizeable quantity of genealogical material and family correspondence, although this generally relates to the English branches of the family, the Alcock Stawells, the Willows, the Bishops (his maternal relatives) and the Fellowes. Included in this section are the personal papers of George Lenox Conyngham, whose daughter, Mary Anne Grace Louisa married Hayes, 4th Viscount.

VI.i. Political & military roles

VI.i.1. Political appointments & military roles

These papers relate to the political appointments and military roles of members of the St Leger family and related families, such as the Aldworths and Fitzpatricks (Lords Castletown). Many of the St Legers were involved in the army or in politics. Six members became M.P.s for Doneraile, and two served as representative peers for Ireland. The papers concerning the involvement of Hayes, 2nd Viscount with the South Cork Militia, especially at the time of the United Irishmen rebellion appear to be of considerable significance.

VI.iii.4. Archive & family papers of Edward St Leger, 6th Viscount

Edward's interest in genealogy seems to have been inherited from his father, Rev. Edward Frederick St Leger, and he was a great collector of family papers. He kept not only correspondence of his immediate family but also that of his maternal and paternal relations, and the archive includes papers from the families of Alcock Stawell, Willowes, Bishop and Fellowes. An insight into the world of the upper classes may be formed from this material. Edward's correspondence with his sister Ethel during the Second World War in which he plans to move from London to Doneraile Court is particularly interesting. Most of the material in the family archive was brought over from England after Edward's death in September 1941.

VI.iii.4(1) Genealogical research, notes & pedigrees

VI.iii.4(5)d. Caroline St Leger (née Bishop), mother

- Ms 34,158
(1) Letter from her cousin, Harriet St Leger, with references to the Crimean War, illnesses such as scarlet and ‘brain’ fever, literature and breastfeeding, ‘surely tis very bad for your sister Charlotte to go on suckling her child this extra length of time, and can it be good for the child? Asses milk, or cream and water or a fresh breast of a healthy young woman would surely be better for the child than her mother’s...enfeebled quality’; 47 items
n.d. [c.1853-60s]
- (2) Letter to ‘Princess’ from her sister Caroline (before her marriage to Rev Edward Frederick St Leger), ‘we find it very comfortable to be so near the Exhibition...the St Leger’s are enjoying themselves...Bessy declared they would never have seen the Exhibition satisfactorily without our guidance...Mr Merewether . . . previously arranged to give them a box for next Thursday so that they go twice to the opera without any expenses to themselves . . . We met Mr [Traer] . . . he is grown so stout...I did not like to enquire for his family or wife, for she might be dead and he may have no children, which would be rather awkward...On Saturday we were quite near Princess Mary of Cambridge for an hour in the Gallery – but have always missed Princess Alice and the Prince of Wales which is a great disappointment to me for I wanted to see them very much. We shall not be at all sorry to see ourselves surrounded by the comforts of home again . . . All this is very pleasant for a time – but one grows weary – Doll and I have bought a sewing machine... a different maker from the Dawsons’ – we think it easier and better than theirs’; 5pp
June 1862
- (3) Letters to ‘Carrie’ (Caroline St Leger) from C.B. (possibly her sister C. Bishop) and her aunt, Martha Watts. In one letter they give a vivid description of a wedding, ‘the wedding was as plain and private as possible, the bride being dressed in a dark blue cotton gown trimmed with white braiding, a dark hat, and no veil, there were two sisters of Mr A Coleman – bridesmaids, and John to give his daughter away...the clergyman and myself were the only ones besides the immediate family at breakfast, Bertie nor her mother did not go to the church. Katie had very few wedding dresses, nothing at all particular for she had determined to get them in London, but I must tell you how I trimmed her black silk parasol which was lined with red and a red and black bow, having a great many Honiton sprigs. I made some very handsome lace nearly two nails wide to go all round it, I also covered a white satin fan with fine net covered as thickly as possible with Honiton sprigs and trimmed along the top with lace to match, a nail wide, the two looked elegant, perhaps you have but I never saw any thing of the kind before, as to her ornaments, her husband has supplied her well with them, the engaged ring is a diamond half hoop, two gold bracelets, several pairs of earrings, a diamond sevine and several other things. They are at Folkestone at the Pavilion with which they are much pleased and have sent me a list of dishes for dinner, at which they say a hundred sit down every day, I send it to you, I suppose they will come home the end of next week –

I thought the twins would be pleased to have the cake addressed to them . . . Katie had prepared a better travelling dress than the one actually worn, but it was thicker and warmer, and the day proving the hottest ever known in England just on the 25th June. . . The Colemans sixteen clerks subscribed to present a silver, quere plated Eperne for a wedding present and Arthur C. gave them a dinner and cake. . . the cake had not the least ornamentation on it, it had a flat surface, a silvered band went round it of figured paper. I hope you will not be tired of reading so many trifles, but there was nothing else';

1883-97
- (6) Letters to Edward from his brother Ralph who relates accounts of his new sheep farming life in Gisborne, New Zealand with references to his lifestyle, farming plans and financial situation. He writes (Sept 1896), 'I like this sort of life pretty well, but the cooking is rather balls. We don't wash up after each meal as you might suppose, this rather disgusted me at first but you soon get used to that . . . I have eaten off the same plate for seven meals running . . . The principal work among the sheep at this time of year is 'dagging' them, this consists of cutting the shit off their behinds. It is rather disgusting isn't it. . . This letter is only intended for you personally'. Referring to sowing grass seed he states, 'I hate doing, it is almost as bad as washing one's own clothes which is a Chinaman's job. I know I let mine get very dirty before I tackle them'; 6 items
1886-94
- (7-9) Correspondence of Edward with his sister Ethel who writes most of her letters from either Doneraile Court or Granston Manor. Ethel writes about family heirlooms such as the jewels of the first lady freemason, Elizabeth St Leger Aldworth (April 10th 1927), 'I asked him [Lord Castletown] if the masonic jewel and shoe buckle were there and he looked and showed me'. Regarding Lord Castletown's will (Apr 1929) she writes, 'about the furniture it is the case that it all belongs to Barney and it is because of Lady Doneraile's will – every one is furious. . . I had a sleepless night in consequence as . . . it's so unfair. This poor old home may go to the next holder of the title without a stick of furniture or a pot or pan in it. . . Barny has made his will heaven only knows what's in it – he told me he's remembered Jessy Richard and I think other servants'. Ethel refers to a break-in (14th May 1940), 'had those visitors again last night . . . got in same way. . . Sergeant . . . seemed to think it must be someone who knew his way about as we do . . . I'm glad the sergeant knows now but why wasn't he told of the first visit'. During the Second World War period Edward writes of blackouts and wartime London, 'the blackouts make everything very uncomfortable, and the whole thing is very much overdone . . . Everyone wants to know how many submarines there are basking in the Irish shores' (Nov 1939). Ethel often refers to those letters opened by censors. Edward also refers to his attempts to come to Ireland and the difficulties therein; c. 110pp
1894-1932, 1932-9, 1940-1

 - (9) Copy letter by Edward to [Tayler] concerning the death and will of Lord Castletown in which he refers to condition of Doneraile Court, 'the house has been denuded of 1. all light – 2. all linen – 3. all kitchen utensils so no one can sleep there: it appears they used to carry them from one place to the other when they moved. Also George Hamilton says the Government keeps on increasing the rates and taxes so much that the outgoings exceed the incomings . . . There was a great long codicil in the will to say he feared there was not enough money to meet the legacies . . . it appears that the Doneraile property has been starved of repairs for the last few years in order to stave off the tradesmens demands at Granston'; 2pp

A. Clutton Brock writes (1887), 'we came to the conclusion that you have determined to live up to [Ovida's] conception of the profligate aristocrat. We shall have you wringing the amber no[i]selle out of your tawny moustache next...Dodgson says you had better keep your pills to yourself to repair the ravages made by excess...I suppose you have given up japanese soap and go to Rimmels'; 9 folders
1882-90
- (10-11) Letters from Harry Clay, 19 Gloucester Crescent, Hyde Park, London. He writes (Jan 1886); 'I certainly cannot agree with Home Rule – and am the victim of a growing disinclination to see the influence of the aristocracy nullified by the clamour and immature action of a new democracy'. In another letter (Jan 1887) he, 'was in Dublin, matriculated and paid entrance fees. Dublin is a nice city: the buildings are good. In those parts which I saw there seems to be no distinction as to aristocratic and poor quarters. The Irish street is remarkable to a stranger: so smellsome, squalid, yet cheerful. Home Rule is the burning topic'; 2 folders

- (4) Letter (copied by Edward) from Sir Richard Taylor to his sister, "If I were the legitimate successor to the peerage of Doneraile, & placed in the same unfortunate ... position as Richard St Leger is, I should be inclined to take no steps whatsoever but call myself Viscount Doneraile – the only advantage he can possibly obtain by 'proving his title' is the right to vote at the election of Irish representative peers ... Mr Fellowes appears to imagine there is a succession duty to be paid on the title ... I feel sure that the family history you have given is correct and that if there were any children born between our mother and uncle Richard they died in infancy. I am convinced that with our dear mother's keen recollection of her early life and the open way in which she always spoke of it ... we must have heard of any other brothers or sisters"; 2pp

VII. LORD & LADY CASTLETOWN'S PAPERS

In 1874 Bernard Edward Barnaby Fitzpatrick, 2nd Baron Castletown married Ursula Clara Emily St Leger, daughter of Hayes, 4th Viscount in 1874. They lived at both Doneraile Court and Granston Manor and often moved between the houses. Lord Castletown was responsible for the management of the St Leger estates in county Cork and some of his correspondence may be found in the Estates Administration subgroup (III). Most of Lady Castletown's papers are personal, particularly those from her husband during a bout of depression. Lord Castletown's papers reveal a man of many interests. His papers relate to his role as Lieutenant Colonel in the 4th Leinster Regiment and his involvement in local government and the House of Lords. There are notes, speeches and letters concerning his views on the land acts, the land question, Home Rule, Unionism, state afforestation and the Irish education and university questions (he was Chancellor of the Royal University of Ireland). Active in the Celtic Revival, his papers include letters from Pádraig Pearse and Douglas Hyde; he also supported many societies including the Freemasons. Lord Castletown wrote an autobiography, Ego: Random Records of Sport, Science & Travel in Many Lands (1928) which is available in the National Library.

Note: Papers relating to Lord Castletown's estate in Queen's county and Granston Manor and gardens were also found among Lord Castletown's correspondence and kept with them. There is also some Lord Castletown material in subgroups II and III

- (2) Speeches, memoranda and notes concerning the land question and land acts by Lord Castletown. Includes draft letters regarding the evicted tenants bill, the agricultural and commercial depression, and a comparison of English and Irish land laws. Concerning the proposed Irish land bill he states; 'I regret the necessity of having to send this...not as a liberal, a supporter of the present Government on Home Rule but as an Irishman it is my duty to protest as strongly as I can against the proposed Irish Land Bill...I have a right to speak also on this subject of the abolition of dual ownership & congestion in the West as I was the first Irishman to advocate sales to the tenants with state assistance'. In another 'speech to men' concerning the eminent bill to enable land to be sold more easily to the tenant farmer, he outlines why he is against it, 'many estates will be sold & many houses, farms & demesnes closed. This will mean much loss of income to the labourers & artisans. I personally do not intend to sell farms to tenants except where it may be of use to the whole body politic in the country. I recognise not only one class in Ireland but several. There are artisans, labourers, landowners, tenants & other professional classes –

all must live together if the country is to go on...If all the land in Ireland was sold to the tenants with the assistance of Govt all the money now spent in Ireland wd be spent in England as every farmer who bought wd pay his purchase price direct to the London Treasury & this money now spent...many channels in Ireland wd all go to England. Nothing cd be more mischievous or shameful. I am all in favour of these Estates where no one lives where no money is returned to the country being sold but not those estates where all classes live together in harmony & try to do their best for the common country. I will now deal with our own case... If I sell to all my tenants I shall go away from Ireland & shall shut up all the work I carry on. You all become without work or will have to work at prices the farmer can afford . . . I have had a return made of the numbers to whom my payments are of absolute importance ...in Cork . . . There are between the 3 places Lisduff, Doneraile, Granston & the saw mills at Doneraile about 250 people, men, women & children who live & as far as I know thrive on what I give in employment. I do not say it is a very large number but it is far more than any farmer or member of Parliament in the South of Ireland employs. You all know many of the young men have been trained here & at Doneraile & have gone out as gardeners, workmen, sawmillers & carpenter apprentices. If things go on quietly and no violent changes are made I hope to increase & extend the work & the training . . .I go to Dublin next week to attend a conference on industries for Ireland with object of checking undue emigration';
