INTRODUCTION

The Family

The Mansfield family of Morrinstown Lattin date from the time of Henry II when Sir Rodulphus Mansfield came to Ireland from Nottinghamshire. He was granted estates in counties Armagh, Derry, Waterford, Cork and Limerick, and settled at Killongford and Ballinamultina in county Waterford. The estates of his descendant, Walter Mansfield, were confiscated because of his part in the 1641 Rebellion and he was transplanted to Connaught. After the Restoration he recovered part of the Ballinamultina estate, the only part of the once extensive estates to remain within the family. Walter's son Richard held a commission in the army of King James II during the Williamite Wars and was later attainted by the Williamite government. Following this loss of prestige and property, the Mansfields, although remaining Catholic, set about extending and consolidating their estates during the penal years of the eighteenth century. They embarked on a series of opportunistic marriage alliances with prominent families, including the Eustaces, the Woulfes and the Lattins. The Lattins were of Anglo-Norman origin and probably settled in Ireland during the reign of King John. Their estates centred around Naas in county Kildare, the house and demesne being at Morrinstown Lattin.

There is much material concerning the Mansfields and related families within the collection. Apart from illustrating their military and public roles within the community, a large proportion of the family papers reflect their personal lives and interests. Probably the largest group of personal papers belongs to G.P.L. Mansfield, the son of Alexander Mansfield and Paulina Lattin, and includes personal correspondence, financial papers and diaries. There are also personal papers of his brother Edmund Alexander Mansfield and son George Mansfield. However, there is little personal material relating to either the earlier or later Mansfields. The personal papers of Patrick Lattin comprise the largest section within the Lattin family material, and include family and financial correspondence, drafts of poetry, prose and plays, and notes on various religious, philosophical and historical topics. Lattin was born in 1762 and spent his early life abroad following the death of his father in 1773. He was educated in Paris and lived there for much of his life in self-imposed exile. The papers relating to the de Ferussac and related families also constitute a notable group within the Collection.

The Estates

By far the largest section within this collection comprises estate papers. Although the early Mansfield family owned estates in various counties, by far the largest part of the papers relate to their estates in counties Kildare and Waterford. During the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries they also held property in other counties through marriage. John Mansfield inherited the Yeomanstown estates in right of his paternal grandmother Jane Eustace, while he also held Carrick-on-Suir in county Tipperary and Rathgormuck in county Waterford through his marriage to Elizabeth Woulfe. The Eustace and Woulfe estates were later held by his younger son Walter Henry Mansfield, while his elder son Alexander Mansfield succeeded to the Ballinamultina. Alexander's holdings were greatly increased by his marriage to Paulina Lattin, the heiress to the sizeable Morristown estates near Naas in county Kildare. He also came into possession of the heavily encumbered Snow estate at Drumdowney and Gurteens in county Kilkenny, which was later sold to pay mounting debts. The Old Connell estate in county Kildare was purchased from the O'Kelly family in 1846. According to Great Landowners of Great Britain and Ireland (1883) the estates in Kildare and Waterford amounted to 5,639 acres with a rental income of almost £4,500.

As well as deeds and leases, legal papers and agreements, the papers include an almost complete set of records relating to the financial administration of the estates from the 1840s onwards, when G.P.L. Mansfield succeeded to the property, until the estates were disposed of in the early twentieth century. There is a substantial set of estate correspondence dating from the administration of G.P.L. Mansfield, who not only retained incoming letters but also copies of his replies. The agents of the Waterford property during the nineteenth century were Francis Kennedy (Senior), Francis Kennedy (Junior), Robert Ronayne Kennedy and later Messers Hussey & Townsend, while during the 1840s and 1850s the administration of the Kildare estates was undertaken by Richard Baillie, the family solicitor and G.P.L. Mansfield's brother Edmund Alexander Mansfield. Later G.P.L. Mansfield became agent of his Kildare property while Edmund Alexander Mansfield again acted as agent to his nephew George Mansfield from 1889 until his own death in 1914.

The second largest group within this section concerns the Lattin estates. In 1667 William Lattin held almost 600 acres at Morristown, Naas and the surrounding areas in county Kildare from Charles II. The Lattin property was enlarged through the marriage of Patrick Lattin and Elizabeth Snow in 1793 when the Snow estates at Drumdowney and Gurteens in county Kilkenny and the county Waterford estate at Ballyrobbin were added to the Kildare property. John Reilly, Thomas Plunkett, John Hackett and Thomas Boland acted as agents to the various estates during Patrick Lattin's residence abroad.

There are also papers relating to the Snow estates at Drumdowney, Glasshouse and Gurteens in county Kilkenny, and Ballyrobbin in county Waterford, to the Woulfe estates at Carrick-on-Suir in county Tipperary and Rathgormuck in county Waterford, to the Eustace estate at Yeomanstown, Gingerstown and Castlekeely in county Kildare, the Alcock estate in the county of Dublin and the O'Kelly estates at Barrettstown and Paynstown in county Kildare. There is a large amount of material relating to the administration of the O'Kelly Trust, which was managed in part by G.P.L. Mansfield and later his son George Mansfield, around the time of the Plan of Campaign which affected the O'Kelly estates.

The Papers

The Collection was acquired by the National Library in a number of different accessions from the 1950s onwards. The principal classes of documents include deeds and leases, agreements and legal papers, correspondence, financial papers, maps and surveys, marriage settlements and wills, and a number of personal items. The bulk of the papers cover the period from the seventeenth to the twentieth centuries, with the earliest document dating from 1565 and the latest from 1954. The Collection is contained in 150 boxes. The papers are generally in good condition, although there are some items relating to the Snow family in very poor condition and not therefore available for consultation.

Because the Library received the Collection by way of a number of accessions, some of the material is already listed in Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation, vol. 3, ed. Richard J. Hayes (1965), p. 303 and Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation-First Supplement 1965-1975, vol. 1, ed. Richard J. Hayes (1979), p. 470. There are also some papers relating to the Lattin family listed in Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation, vol. 3, ed. Richard J. Hayes (1965), p. 33, including G.O. MS 103, pp. 90-91 concerning the arms of the Lattin family. This material is not included in this Collection List and reference should be made to Manuscript Sources. Some of the Collection was listed by Sir John Ainsworth in 'Reports on Private Collections', numbers 11 and 396 (supplement) and is published in Analecta Hibernica, no. 20 (1958).

Arrangement

When the Mansfield Collection was acquired the original order of the papers had been largely upset. They have now been arranged into four subgroups; the first concerning the administration of the estates; the second relating to the administration of the estate farm and gardens; the third to the administration of the household; and the fourth to the family and personal papers. Within each subgroup the papers have been separated by family, and then by document type.

Assesment

The Mansfield Collection is an extensive accumulation of estate and family papers. The estates of the Mansfield and Lattin families are particularly well documented, although there is some material concerning the administration of the Woulfe and Snow estates during the latter half of the eighteenth century. The papers relating to the O'Kelly estates at Barrettstown and Paynstown concern mainly the administration of the O'Kelly Trust. The household records include inventories of furniture, papers relating to the renovation of the family seat at Morrystown Lattin in 1845, and household and personal accounts.

While there is a sizeable amount of family papers within this collection, there is, with some exceptions, a noticeable absence of personal papers of many members of the Mansfield and Lattin families. There are few marriage settlements and wills, and although several members of the Mansfield family served in the military during the nineteenth and twentieth century, there is little documentary evidence of this. Their public roles within the local community are better documented. Similarly despite the vast amount of personal correspondence presumably generated by the Mansfields, only a small proportion appears within the Collection, and most of this relates to G.P.L. Mansfield and his son George. There is little material concerning the personal lives of George Mansfield's children. The correspondence and personal papers of Patrick Lattin constitute the greater part of the Lattin family papers, which also include eight boxes of his various writings. Most of the Snow family papers concern the financial position of Robert Snow (father of Elizabeth Lattin) while again there is little material relating to the Woulfe family. The inclusion of the de Ferussac family papers enhances the importance of the Collection.

The Mansfield Collection is particularly important for the study of the landed history of county Kildare. It is an invaluable source for the research of the landed gentry and provides much interesting material relating to landlord-tenant relations and the land question in that area.

I. ESTATE PAPERS

Within this subgroup the papers have been separated by family, and then according to document type. Where there is much material in a particular section it has been divided further by county and estate. Among the title deeds and leases some related legal papers were found and have been kept as such.

I.i. Mansfield Estate

The Mansfield estate in county Waterford included the following townlands: Ballinamultina, Ballinure (Ballinore), Ballycurrane, Lackamore, Knockaniska and Ballindruma. The Kildare property was divided into several estates. These were the Morrystown (also called Lattin) estate, which came into the hands of the Mansfields after the marriage of the Lattin heiress Paulina Lattin to Alexander Mansfield in 1816, comprising of Morrystown, Herbertstown, Rathasker, Bluebell, Westown, Naas and Killishee; the Old Connell estate which was purchased from the O'Kelly family in 1846; the Mansfield estate of Castlekeely, Carragh, Gingerstown and Raheens, part of which was inherited from the Eustace family by John Mansfield; Mooretown and Thomastown the latter of which was leased from George Leopold Bryan and later his nephew George Leopold Bellew, 4th Baron Bellew, and the Meath estate of Clownstown and Knockmark. The Tipperary property at Carrick-on-Suir was held by John Mansfield through his marriage to Elizabeth Woulfe, and later passed to his younger son Walter Henry Mansfield. The Mansfield family also owned 'Hainault', a house in Foxrock, county Dublin.

IV.ii.4.c. Patrick Lattin

Patrick Lattin, eldest son of George and Catherine Lattin was born at Morristown in 1762. On the death of his father in 1773 he was sent abroad to be educated, and he studied at the College Henry IV in Paris and at the University of Turin. He later served with the Irish Brigade under General Count Theobald Dillon in the West Indies and in France. After Dillon's murder he returned to Ireland and married in 1793 Elizabeth Snow, daughter of Robert Snow (Junior) of Drumdowney, county Kilkenny. A man of high intellectual attainments, Lattin was a friend and associate of John Deare, Lady Morgan, Elizabeth, Margravine of Anspach and Valentine-Browne Lawless, 2nd Baron Cloncurry among others. He later returned to Paris and lived at Rue Trudon where he died in 1836.

IV.viii. De Ferussac Family

In 1877 Alice d’Audebard de Ferussac married George Mansfield, and brought with her to Morristown several boxes of her family’s papers. These consist chiefly of the papers of her paternal family, although there are also several documents relating to the family of her mother, the American Thorn family. Her father Bertrand Marie Louis Amedee d’Audebard, Baron de Ferussac (1817-1897), a Papal Count, married in 1845 Alice Thorn, an opera singer. Her grandfather Andre Etienne Juste Paschal Joseph Francois d'Audebard, Baron de Ferussac (1786-1836) was a renowned scientist who in 1818 published his Histoire generale et particuliere des mollesques terrestres et fluviatiles. Although his main areas of concern were in the field of biology he was also interested in mathematics, astronomy, physics and chemistry.

As well as the papers of the de Ferussac family, there is also material concerning other related families such as the Pleurre, de Rozet and Boucher d'Orsay families.

Unless otherwise stated all the papers in this section are in French.
