Introduction

The Maxwell family of Farnham

The branch of the Maxwell family from whom the Barons Farnham were descended, arrived in Ireland at the end of Queen Elizabeth's reign at the request of James VI of Scotland, later James I of England. Robert Maxwell, second son of John Maxwell MP of Calderwood Castle, East Kilbride, Lanarkshire, Scotland, came at this time and has been described as being, 'one of four lowland Scots of any consequence who lived in the English Pale.' In 1609 he was appointed Chancellor of the dioceses of Connor and in 1610, Dean of Armagh. His eldest son Robert Maxwell DD, held various ecclesiastical positions in the dioceses of Connor and Armagh, before being appointed Bishop of Kilmore in 1643, and Ardagh in 1661. In 1664, he purchased the manors of Dromhill and Dromellan, in the central barony of Upper Loughtee, county Cavan, from Thomas Waldron, thus cementing the Maxwell family connection with county Cavan for the next 330 years.

John Maxwell succeeded his father Bishop Maxwell, as owner of the Farnham estate in 1672. In 1689 he was attainted of high treason and his name was included within the secret list of King James II. John Maxwell died without issue in 1713 and his nephew Rev Robert Maxwell DD, of Fellows Hall, county Armagh succeeded to the Cavan property. He also died without issue in 1737, and his cousin John Maxwell of College Hall, county Armagh, inherited the estate. Between 1725 and 1756 John Maxwell sat as MP for Cavan, while holding the positions of Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas between 1725 until his death in 1759 and Sheriff of Cavan in 1739. In May 1756 he was elevated to the peerage as Baron Farnham of Farnham, county Cavan. On his death in 1759 John, 1st Baron, was succeeded, by his son Robert, as 2nd Baron. In 1760 Robert was created Viscount Farnham and three years later was elevated to the rank of earl, as Earl of Farnham.

Following his death in November 1779, Robert, 2nd Baron, was succeeded by his brother Barry. Because the title was succeeded to collaterally, the titles of Viscount and Earl became extinct. However during his lifetime, Barry, 3rd Baron, regained the titles of Viscount Farnham in 1781 and that of Earl of Farnham in 1785. Prior to his succession the 3rd Baron, had held political and judicial office in Dublin. Between 1756 and 1760 he was MP for county Cavan, between 1761 and 1768 MP for county Armagh, and again MP for Cavan from 1768 until 1779. Like his father, he held the position of Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas between 1741 and 1800; in addition he was also called to the Irish Bar in 1748 and appointed a Bencher in 1757. On his death in 1800, his son John James succeeded as 4th Baron. Like his predecessors, John James had been politically active prior to coming to the title and the estates, representing county Cavan as MP between 1779 and 1783, and again between 1793 and 1800. It was he who employed Francis Johnston to design the addition of the garden front to Farnham House during the early years of the nineteenth century.

The 4th Baron died without issue in 1823 and the titles of Viscount and Earl of Farnham became extinct on the collateral succession of his cousin John, son of Henry, Lord Bishop of Meath -a son of John, 1st Baron. Political involvement dominated John, 5th Baron's life before coming to the title in 1823. Between 1787 and 1788, at the tender age of 20 he sat as MP for county Cavan, returning to parliament for Doneraile between 1792 and 1797 and for Newtown Limavady between 1798 and 1800. Between 1806 and 1823 he again sat as Tory MP for county Cavan. He was also Colonel of the Cavan Militia between 1797 and 1823. Following his death in 1838, he was succeeded by his brother Rev Henry, 6th Baron, who held the title for less than one month. His eldest son Henry, 7th Baron, succeeded in October 1838, retaining the title until his own death, which was caused by a railway accident in August 1868. Henry, 7th Baron, had been Tory MP for county Cavan between 1824 and 1838, and on succeeding to the title was a Representative Irish Peer between 1838 and 1868. He was made a Knight of St Patrick in 1845. As Henry, died without issue the title passed to his brother Somerset Richard who held the title until 1884. Somerset Richard, 8th Baron's political life had been relatively short; he was Tory MP for county Cavan between 1839 and 1840. He also died without issue, and his brother James Pierce succeeded as 9th Baron.

The 9th Baron was Conservative MP for county Cavan between 1843 and 1865. As Lieutenant Colonel of the 97th Foot he was severely wounded during the Crimean War. On his death without issue in 1896 he was succeeded as 10th Baron by his nephew Somerset Henry son of Richard Thomas Maxwell of Fortland, county Cavan. Before coming to the title Somerset Henry, was Captain and Honorary Major of the 4th Battalion of the Princess Victoria's Royal Irish Fusiliers and sometime Lieutenant of the 98th Regiment. This military experience proved useful when he led a relief force of Orangemen from county Cavan to save the harvest of Captain Boycott of Lough Mask, county Mayo in November 1880. This led to the formation of the Property Defence Association, which attempted to protect the liberties and livelihoods of landowners. In August 1897 shortly after his coming of age Barry Somerset Maxwell, died following a bicycling accident at Castle Saunderson, Belturbet. Yet again the Maxwell's had been denied a direct succession from father to eldest son. The second oldest son, Arthur Kenlis became 11th Baron in 1900 on the death of the 10th Baron. Like his father, his experience before inheriting the estate and title had been dominated by military life, educated at the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst, he received his first commission during the Boer War as Lieutenant of the 10th Hussars. Later, during World War I, he was Lieutenant Colonel of the North Irish Horse. His only son Somerset Arthur Maxwell, MP for King's Lynn, died from wounds received at the battle of El Alamein in December 1942. In 1957 Arthur Kenlis, 11th Baron, was succeeded by his grandson, Barry Owen Somerset. The present head of the family is Simon Kenlis, 13th Baron, who resides in England.

The estates

The landholding interests of the Maxwell family, Barons Farnham in county Cavan were accumulated by various members of the family during the period 1664 to 1765. Seven major separate purchases of rural lands, in addition to three purchases of urban property, culminated in their becoming the largest landowners in county Cavan with substantial holdings in Cavan town by the end of the eighteenth century. The initial purchase of land in county Cavan was made by Bishop Robert Maxwell in 1664, when he expended some £2,000 in the acquisition of the 7,000 statute acre estate of the Waldron family, originally granted to them under the scheme of the Ulster Plantation. Located within the parishes of Kilmore, Urney and Annageliff, in the barony of Upper Loughree, these lands comprised some of the most productive in the county. The next major acquisition of land occurred in 1715 when Rev Robert Maxwell purchased the Lisnamaine estate of some 3,100 statute acres at a cost of £6,900 from Jane Culme. Like the Waldron's, the Culme's had been granted land during the Ulster plantation in the parishes of Drumlane, Kildallon, Denn and Kilmore, lying in the baronies of Lower and Upper Loughree and Tullyhunco. This purchase also included lands in county Meath.

Rev Robert Maxwell continued to add to the families property in county Cavan with the purchase of the Massareene estate in 1716. Originally granted to the Massareene family during the Cromwellian settlement, these lands differed from the Farnham and Lisnamaine estates in that they were geographically fragmented, reflective of their origins in the Cromwellian distribution of land, which placed little emphasis on settlement. The Massareene land block amounted to some 15,000 statute acres spread throughout the parishes of Killinkere, Mullagh, Lurgan, Denn and Crosserlough in the barony of Castlerahan; the parishes of Ballymachugh, Drumlumman and Ballintemple in Clanmahon and the parishes of Kildallon and Templeport in the barony of Tullyhaw. The sale of the estate by the Massareene family for some £13,600 was necessitated by 'An act for the confirming and settlement made on the marriage of the now Lord Viscount Massareene and for better securing the jointure of his lady and of Rachel, Viscountess Dowager Massareene, vesting in trustees certain lands and titles in Ireland to be sold for the purposes therein mentioned'.

The next purchase was made by John, 1st Baron, who circa 1719, bought the estate of Major Charles Hampson. Granted to Thomas Hampson during the Cromwellian settlement these lands amounted to some 1,500 statute acres, located in the parish of Castlerahan, in the barony of Castlerahan and in the parishes of Ballymachugh and Drumlumman in the barony of Clanmahon. Cumulatively the Farnham, Lisnamaine, Massareene and Hampson estates generated in the region of some £2,300 in rental income in 1719, rising to £3,700 in 1760. In 1740, John, 1st Baron, acquired the Dunsany estate, from Edward Plunkett, Lord Dunsany, at a cost of £5,120. Located in the parishes of Ballymachugh and Kilbride in the barony of Clanmahon and in the parish of Lurgan in the barony of Castlerahan, these lands were later to become the core of the Fortland estate. The two remaining acquisitions of land in county Cavan were made by Robert, 2nd Baron. In 1758 he acquired the manor of Castle Craig from John Carmichael for some £18,900. Amounting to some 5,900 statute acres these lands lay predominantly within the parishes of Killashandra and Kildallon in the barony of Tullyhunco. In 1765, Robert, 2nd Baron, acquired another 1,600 statute acres and 800 statute acres held under fee farm grants, lying in the same parishes from the Carmichael family. Rental income generated by the tenanted estate rose dramatically during the period from £3,700 in 1760 to £11,100 in 1807. No doubt the purchase of these additional lands coupled with the move away from single tenant occupancy of townlands, to one whereby multiple tenancies were created in townlands were the main factors in such an increase.

In addition to the lands acquired by the Maxwell family in county Cavan, the opportune marriage of John, 1st Baron, to Judith Barry, daughter and heir of James Barry in 1719, also brought lands in counties Wexford, Carlow and Kildare centred on the town of Newtownbarry, [Bunclody], county Wexford into Maxwell family hands. The Maxwell family held the Newtownbarry estate until the mid nineteenth century, when it was sold under the terms of the Encumbered Estates Act.

Besides the extensive rural landholdings of the Barons Farnham, they had also by the mid eighteenth century acquired a substantial amount of property within Cavan town. Three separate purchases of property were made. Firstly, in 1720, John, 1st Baron, acquired the Somerville estate from James Somerville at a cost of £1,500. The indenture of sale lists some 50 properties, described as being ‘messuages, curtilages and gardens’ that constituted the holdings of 17 head tenants. Of these 50 properties, 14 were described as being located on Castle Street, 15 on High Street, 11 on Bridge Street and 9 on Ballaghaboy Street. The last property was described as being ‘three acres of meadow in the small meadow field’. In 1746, John, 1st Baron, enlarged the urban property through the acquisition of the Gibson family estate from Charles Barry for some £1,100. The property was described as being, ‘the fourteen pieces or parcels and acres of land called the fourteen burgesses lots and acres of Roscollgan and one park commonly called Bellews Park with the appurtenances in and near the town of Cavan now in the possession of Charles Barry and lately in the possession of Charles Gibson and his undertenants and William Foster and his undertenants... also the twelve messuages and gardens with the appurtenances in the town of Cavan’. The final purchase of urban property was made by Robert, 2nd Baron, in 1764 when he acquired from the Ashe family of Ashfield, county Meath, ‘fifty cottages, fifty lofts, ten orchards, ten pigeon houses, fifty acres of arable land, fifty acres of meadow, one hundred acres of pasture, fifty acres of wood and underwood, fifty acres of furze and fifty acres of moor and marsh, with the appurtenances in the towns and lands called the Abbeylands of Cavan and the town and lands of Keadue otherwise called the two polls of Keady’ at a cost of £1,500.

The acreage of the estate fluctuated throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries as certain lands were sold to comply with family settlements and wills. In the mid nineteenth century, the Griffith Valuation, detailed that the estate extended to some 25,000 statute acres. The Return of Owners of Land of One Acre and Upwards, 1876 noted that the lands of Somerset Richard, 8th Baron, amounted to some 29,000 statute acres which placed them at the apex of the landownership pyramid in county Cavan. In 1879 the rental income of the entire Farnham estate of town and country amounted to some £10,761, rising in 1897 to its highest documented amount when, £13,100 was received in rents by the agent T R Blackley. The tenanted estate remained in the ownership of the family until the early years of the twentieth century when, under the Irish Land Act, 1903, some 3,000 statute acres, part of the Carmichael estate located in the parish of Killashandra, barony of Tullyhunco, were sold. In 1904 the rental income of the estate amounted to £12,700 per annum. The remaining tenanted estate was sold during the tenure of Arthur Kenlis, 11th Baron, under the terms of the Irish Land Act, 1923, and the 1931 Land Act, while the family retained some 2,800 acres of untenanted lands, including demesne, forest, water, woodland and mountain, the mansion house at Farnham as well as non-agricultural, residential lands in Cavan town. This acreage was reduced over the following years and in 2001, following the death of Barry Owen Somerset, 12th Baron, the remaining demesne lands amounting to some 1,200 statute acres were sold- thus ending the families 330 year connection with the property.

The Farnham papers

The Farnham collection consists of estate and family papers covering the period from about 1600 to around 1950. They were deposited at several different times with the National Library of Ireland. In 1944 Arthur Kenlis, 11th Baron, deposited material, which has been detailed in Analecta Hibernica (1944). The second major accession, mainly correspondence, was received in 1972 from Barry Owen Somerset, 12th Baron, and this material is detailed in NLI Report on Private Collections No. 494A. The material from both of these accessions is listed in Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation (1965) and Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilization (Supplement) (1975) respectively. The remaining unsorted material, originally housed in some 20 packing cases, has been arranged and listed, thus making it available to the researcher for the first time.

As with many other collections of papers generated by the landed families of Ireland, the principal classes of documents contained within the Farnham collection relate to the title, administration and management of the estate lands. Title deeds for the various estates are comprehensive in detailing the previous owners of the rural and urban estates, and the process of their sale to the Maxwell family during the eighteenth century. Encumbrances on these lands including marriage settlements, mortgages and financial judgements secured by these lands are also numerous. Through the legal mechanism of the lease, these lands were devolved to tenants. An exceptional range of leases both in terms of their geographical and chronological extent, are contained in the collection, providing immense detail relating to tenants, the size of their holdings, their annual rent besides listing the clauses within the leases. Rentals and rent rolls are fragmentary in their coverage, however their range is impressive covering the period 1699 to 1897. The estate maps and surveys (covering the period 1723-1919) already listed (21 F 115-120) are detailed in a more comprehensive manner in this list. Papers relating to individual Barons Farnham, in particular those concerned with the accumulating debts of Rev Henry, 6th Baron, and the attempts of his brother John, 5th Baron, to alleviate them during the early nineteenth century, constitute a large portion of the sub group concerned with legal and financial papers. Wills, testamentary material and executor's receipts relative to members of the Maxwell family, are also represented in the collection.

A substantial amount of the correspondence within this list has already been detailed in Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation (1965) and Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilization (Supplement) (1975). Particularly prominent is the political correspondence of John, 5th Baron, and Henry, 7th Baron, covering the early to mid nineteenth century. Much of this material has been listed by A P W Malcomson, in Special Lists No. 356-358 and in NLI Report on Private Collections No. 494A. Notable gaps within the correspondence section include the 1st to 4th Barons, the 6th Baron and the 8th and 9th Barons, who are represented by only a small number of letters. Previously unsorted correspondence of the 11th Baron with T

R Blackley, the land agent, other demesne employees and Messrs Allen & Halpin, the estate solicitors, details the impact of the politically and militarily troubled period of the 1920s on the Maxwell family, their house, demesne and estate. The business papers of Arthur Kenlis, 11th Baron, mostly his correspondence while employed by several English coal and iron companies in the 1920s and during his subsequent chairmanship of the Monaghan Cinema Ltd., illustrate the changing lifestyle of an Irish landlord after the loss of his tenanted estate.

In the main the manuscript material is in good condition, although some of the earlier material is quite fragile. Manuscripts in need of particular attention have been noted within the list.

Other Farnham estate and family papers, have been deposited in recent years by Barry Owen Somerset, 12th Baron and his wife Diana, Lady Farnham in the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland and in Cavan County Library. This material is complementary to the manuscripts held in the National Library of Ireland.

Arrangement of the collection

As the original arrangement of the collection of papers could not be ascertained a new layout has been imposed upon it. The papers have been divided into several groupings namely, (I) legal papers, (II) estate papers, (III) correspondence of family members, (IV) personal papers of family members, (V) business papers of Arthur Kenlis, 11th Baron and (VI) miscellaneous material. Sub groups are arranged either at estate (alphabetical, then chronological), personal (chronological) or document type level.

To provide a comprehensive list of the Farnham papers, the manuscript material already listed in Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation (1965) and Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilization (Supplement) (1975), as well as material from the online catalogue of the National Library of Ireland relating to the Maxwell family and the Barons Farnham has been included in this list.

Note regarding personal and place names

For clarity in this list members of the Maxwell family who held the title Baron Farnham are identified firstly, by their Christian name and peerage number. For example, John, 1st Baron and Arthur Kenlis, 11th Baron. No reference is made in this list to the titles of Viscount and Earl of Farnham. The Lady Farnhams detailed in the list are identified using their Christian name and their title. For example Judith, Lady Farnham and Aileen, Lady Farnham.

Townland names have been standardised according to the spelling used in the General Alphabetical Index to the townlands and towns, parishes and baronies of Ireland Based on the census of Ireland for the year 1851 (Baltimore, 1984). Where modern equivalents of townlands, detailed in the manuscripts could not be identified the names on the manuscripts have been used.

I Legal papers

This sub group of manuscripts is divided into eight sections, namely title deeds and related papers, marriage settlements, mortgages, assignment of judgements, annuities and charges, leases, unexecuted and draft leases and legal and financial papers concerning family members. These papers detail the ownership and title to the Maxwell family lands in counties Cavan, Carlow, Kildare, Meath and Wexford. They provide a comprehensive body of detailed source material concerning the manner and means by which the Farnham estate was acquired, encumbered and administered, through title deed, mortgage, annuities, marriage settlements and charges and lease respectively. Manuscripts detailing the financial and legal concerns of individual members of the Maxwell family, Barons Farnham are contained in the final section of this sub grouping.

II Estate Papers

This sub group of manuscripts is divided into five sections, namely, rentals and rent rolls, accounts, maps and survey, material relating to tenants and miscellaneous estate papers. These manuscripts contain detail pertaining to the rental income generated by the estate during the period 1699 to 1897. The Maxwell family estates in counties Cavan, Wexford and Carlow are represented within the rentals, however detailed coverage is restricted to two specific periods namely 1800-1808 and 1841-1848. Estate and demesne accounts are most detailed for the period 1841-1842 and 1845-1847. Maps and surveys provide a unique cartographic source in illustrating the tenanted estate. [See below]. Some aspects of the landlord tenant relationship on the Farnham estate during the nineteenth century maybe gleaned from MS 3,117-3,118. Comprised of two bound volumes these detail tenant applications to the 5th, 6th and 7th Barons Farnham during the period 1832 to 1860, and their responses to these requests.
