INTRODUCTION

The family

The Papers relate particularly to the descendants of William Smith O'Brien (1803-1864) one of the leaders of the Young Ireland movement. On the death of his mother, Lady Charlotte, in 1856, O'Brien inherited the estate of Cahirmoyle, near Rathkeale, in County Limerick. Lady Charlotte had married Sir Edward O'Brien, 4th Bart. in 1799. She was the eldest daughter of William Smith, a solicitor, who had bought the Cahirmoyle estate in 1774. On her father's death in 1809 she inherited the property. When William Smith O'Brien died in 1864 the estate was inherited by his eldest son William Edward O'Brien (1837-1909) who had married Mary Spring-Rice, sister of the 2nd Baron Monteagle of Brandon, in 1863. She died in 1868. They had three children: (William) Dermot (1865-1945), Ellen Lucy (Nelly) (d. 1925) and (Lucy) Mary (d. 1926). William Edward O'Brien married, secondly, Julia Mary Marshall in 1880. They had four children. The eldest son by the first marriage, Dermot, married Mabel Smyly, 2nd daughter of the Dublin physician Sir Philip Crampton Smyly, in 1902 and, on the death of his father in 1909, he inherited Cahirmoyle. Cahirmoyle was sold by Dermot O'Brien in 1919 and the family moved to Dublin. Mabel O'Brien's death in 1942 was followed by that of her husband in 1945.

The papers

The collection was purchased by the National Library of Ireland in December 2000 (Accession 5614).

About half of the Collection (15 boxes) consists of correspondence between members of the family. The letters exchanged between Dermot O'Brien and his wife Mabel constitute by far the greater part of this series (12 boxes) and extend in time from the period of Home Rule until Mabel's death during the Second World War. Until the sale of Cahirmoyle in 1919, Dermot's varied career as a painter and as President of the Royal Hibernian Academy, along with his early activities as a liberal Unionist, and his continued involvement in the co-operative movement, required almost continual residence in Dublin. Although born of a Dublin professional family, Mabel applied herself to the running of the estate. She established a successful cheese-making business and occupied herself with the many administrative and personal problems with which a humane and conscientious landholder was called upon to deal. When the family had established itself at 65 Fitzwilliam Square in Dublin the correspondence continued. It was sustained by means of visits to family members in Britain and Ireland and by Dermot's painting holidays in Europe.

The series of letters between Dermot O'Brien and his step-mother Julia very much belies the stereotype applied so frequently to such a family relationship. The Collection preserves a substantial amount of Dermot's letters to her. They extend from his days as a schoolboy at Harrow until Julia's death in 1907.

The correspondence also includes a series of letters from Edward Conor Marshall O'Brien giving an account of his circumnavigation on the yacht Saoirse, 1923-1925.

A series of legal instruments and other papers relating to land tenure illustrate in particular the activities of William Smith, whose astute dealings brought Cahirmoyle to the O'Brien family.

Personal papers include those of William Smith O'Brien's daughter, the novelist and advocate of the rights of Irish women emigrants, Charlotte Grace O'Brien (1845-1909); a small group of William Smith O'Brien's own papers including a journal of his 1862-1863 European tour; the memoirs of Lucius Henry O'Brien (1842-1913), Dean of Limerick; papers relating to the varied careers of Dermot and Mabel O'Brien; draft literary works by Edward Conor Marshal O'Brien; a draft biography of William Smith O'Brien by Stephen Gwynn.

Dermot O'Brien was President of the Royal Hibernian Academy of Art from 1910 until his death in 1945. While the Collection contains no archival material concerning the Academy, O'Brien's prominent position inevitably drew him into the controversies surrounding the Sir Hugh Lane Bequest and the proposed building for the Municipal Gallery of Modern Art. The collection contains a significant amount of material concerning this dispute. O'Brien served as Chairman of the Committee of Inquiry into the National Museum (1927-1928). The Collection contains papers connected with the Committee as well as material related to O'Brien's period as a member of the Museum's Board of Visitors. O'Brien's attachment to the United Arts' Club is evident from the five folders of light and occasional verse mostly in his hand composed to enliven the Club's activities.

Mabel O'Brien's papers range from documents illustrating the trials and tribulations of producing "Ardagh Cheese" to her accomplished translations of Dante's Divina Commedia. Her concern for the humane upbringing of children is expressed in a series of essays, some of which were published in The Parents' Review, the journal of the Parents' National Educational Union. Her correspondence includes a substantial series of letters dating from 1923 to 1940 from the playwright George Shiels.

Dermot and Mabel O'Brien were close friends of Lennox Robinson. Along with related correspondence and other papers, the Collection contains a draft of Robinson's biography of Dermot O'Brien, Palette and Plough, which was published in 1948.
